Washington, August 2.—Here are some

PROTESTS AGAINST CLASS LEGISLATION.

Mr. Reagan, in discussing the general question of protection, spoke of the organization of farmers' alliances and workingmen's associations that were protesting against class legislation and plundering laws. He warned senators that such a movement was not to be ignored.

A conference was ordered on the sundry eivil appropriation bill, and Messrs. Allison, Hale, and Gorman were appointed conferrees on the part of the Senate.

At 5 o'clock Mr. Aldrich (intending to move an adjournment) proposed that a vote on the pending question be taken on Monday without further discussion.

"Take a vote now. We are ready. We are always ready to vote as soon as discussion is over," were responses from several senators on the Democratic side.

Mr. Aldrich did not think there was a quorum present; but he was willing to try.

A vote was taken on Mr. Vest's amendtry.

A vote was taken on Mr. Vest's amendment and the result was—yeas, 17; navs, 20—no quorum. Messrs. Paddock and Plumb voted Are with the Democrats.

The Senate then, on motion of Mr. Aldrich at 5:15 adjourned till ten o'clock Monday morning.

PROTESTS AGAINST CLASS LEGISLATION.

WASHINGTON, August 2.—It is the understanding among the Republican senators that Mr. Blair's resolution for the incorporation of the previous question or some other method of limiting debate into the rules of the Senate will remain with the Committee on Rules until the cancus shall decide when it is necessary to introduce the rule for consideration. That is not expected to be for some time wet. pected to be for some time yet.

A DEMAND ON GUATEMALA. Indemnity Wanted for a Seizure from a American Steamer.

(By telegraph to the Dispatch.) Washington, August 2.—There has been placed on file at the Department of State a copy of the demand made by the Pacific Mail Steamship Company on Guatemala for an indemnity of $690,000 for the seizure of munitions of war by that country from the steamer Guatemala.

Hon. Maris Taylor, Democratic nominee for Governor of South Dakota, was born in Chester county, Pa., July 6, 1847, his parentage for three or four generations back being natives of that State. He was raised upon his father's farm until orphaned at fourteen years of age, when he went to live with an uncle in Lancaster county, also a farmer. He gained his education in the common schools, excepting a winter term in a private academy and a term at a commercial college. He went to Dakota when twenty years of age, settling in Yankton in 1888, where he engaged at work in a printing-office. In February, 1872, in company with T. F. Singiser, afterwards acting-Governor and a delegate in Congress from Idaho, he established at Yankton the Dakota Herald, which for eight or ten years was the only Democratic paper in the Territory. He remained its editor until 1885, when he was appointed Surveyor-General of the Territory by President Cleveland, which position he held for four years. At the first State election in the fall of 1889 he was elected as a representative from Beadle county in the lower house of the Legislature. Mr. Taylor was nominated by acclamation and without opposition as the candidate of his party for Governor. ing a winter term in a private academy an

The deal made yesterday authorizes the Richmond and Manchester Railway Company to build and operate a hotel at Forest-Hill Park, but does not allow the company to construct dwelling-houses in the Park; or, in other words, the Park must remain a park. The Richmond and Manchester Railway Company will issue about $300,000 in bonds to complete the electric line to Forest Hill, and the electric line must run at least a fifteen-minute schedule.

BUTCHERED BY AN ENGINE. Ninth-Street Bridge. Canal street between Eighth and Ninth

Canal street between Eighth and Ninth was converted into a temporary slaughterpen yesterday afterneen. The locomotive of a passing freight train piayed the rôle of butcher, and when it had gone by quarters and halvesof mutton were strewn about the track promiscuously and maimed sheep were lying around on all sides.

The locomotive which did such deadly work was the property of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Company and the sheep were owned by Mr. Belwood, who lives in Chesterfield. The engine was pulling a long freight train down the track leading to the wharves, and the sheep were being driven by a colored boy from the Byrd-Street depot to Mr. Belwood's farm.

The flock numbered about one hundred and fifty. When they had gotten nearly to the Ninth-street bridge the train came in sight, and although it is said that the engineer tried to stop the engine he was unable to do so before reaching the sheep, which, on seeing the locomotive, became terrided. Instead of running away from it many darted down the track in front of the locomotive towards the trestle which crosses the basin and runs in the rear of F. E. Patrick & Co.'s. Large numbers ran into the basin, while others were knocked off the trest's into the water.

MADE THEMSELVES HEARD. BOW IT HAPPENED.

The sir was filled with the bleatings of the poor beasts, and it was a pitcous sight to see their struggles. The train severed five or six in half, throwing one part of the carcass, including the head and forelegs, on one side of the track and the other part on the concepts.

and about twenty wounded in various ways, some having their legs cut off and others being terribly mangled, so that they will have to be slaughtered. It was a pathetic sight to see their sufferings.

The track was strewn with the blood, fur, and parts of fiesh of the poor beasts.

fur, and parts of flesh of the poor beasts.

Mr. Belwood, who had just purchased the sheep in order to stock his farm a few miles from this city, will endeavor to recover damages from the railroad, though it is not positively known who was to blame in the matter. The flock had just passed the freight-house of the Union depot when the engine emerged from behind some box-cars, and appearing thus so suddenly they became maddened from fright and ran pell-mell in front of the engine.

After the accident the carcasses of the sheep that had been run over were gathered up and will probably be sold. The remainder of the flock that escaped were driven together, and several colored boys dived into the basin and captured those swimming there. Some of those most cut to bices were given away.

THE ENGLISH LICENSE BILL.

Chamberlain Admits the Governmen Made a Mistake in Introducing It. (By Angle-American cable to the Dispatch.)

Brammoram, August 2.—Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, in a speech here to-night, said the Government had made a tactical mistake in introducing the licensing bill during the session that was crowded with business. The intentions of the Government, however, were good and the proposals were reasonable and beneficent, and ought to have commanded the support of every temperance man. The proposals had in fact secured the support of the friends of temperance, but the Government had been balked by the unexpected hosthity of the temperance people who were represented by the leaders of the United Kingdom Alliance, and above all by the unexpected development of a party spirit that sought on every occasion to damage the Government in power. He could respect the sincerity of some of the opponents of the measure, but he could not say the same for the Gladstonean and Parnellites allies, because it was well known that the Parnellites were opposed to anything in the nature of even moderate temperance reform, while the majority of the Gladstoneans were pledged in favor of the compensation of the public. The Government erred in not foreseeing these contingencies, but the temperance people had made a greater mistake in rejecting an opportunity which might not occur again for many years. (By Anglo-American cable to the Dispatch.)

Chamberlain saw nothing to discourage the Unionists. The Government, he said, had conducted its work with singular good fortune and success, and had raised England's influence higher than it had been for many years. Even the opposition did not dare to impugn the foreign policy of the ministry. He ridiculed Gladstone for raising the "no-poppinery" regarding the mission of General Simmons, and claimed that Salisbury in sending a regular mission to the Vatican in the interest of his Catholic fellow-subjects had acted in a more honorable and straightforward way than if he had employed an amateur like Mr. Errington, who might be rewarded with a baronetcy, or disavowed later, if party exigencies could require such action. In conclusion, he prophesied that at the next session the taxes would be further reduced and free education would be made universal.

A POINTED REMINDER.

Mr. Morgan reminded Mr. Blair of the long time (six or seven weeks) consumed in the consideration of the education bill, and said that that time had not been wasted, as the result of the discussion of the bill had been its defeat, just as he hoped the debate on the tariff bill would result in the defeat of that measure.

The resolution was, on motion of Mr. Ammesty for Offending Strikers.

Washington, August 2.—Here are some of the chief reasons for claiming that the force bill will not be passed by the Senate this session:

A strong delegation of manufacturers have been here within the past ten days protesting that before any political scheme is attempted it is the duty of the Senate to pass the tariff bill, as the business of the country is unsettled by this long delay and suspense.

The reports coming in are to the effect that the force bill is not as popular even in the North as the Republican leaders had supposed.

It is conceded that ten or a dozen of the Republican senators will not consent to a limitation unon debate, and without a gas roll it will be impossible to pass the force bill, even though it had the undivided support of the party.

The terrible attack upon the bill by Master-Workman Powderly, of the Knights of Labor, will make it so unpopular in the North and West among laboring men that it is dangerous to buck against this big organization.

The muddle into which Secretary Blaine has gotten his party over the reciprocity question has heaped up fresh reciprocity question has heaped up fresh troube and will delay for several weeks the passage of the tariff bill.

The conspiracy to force Secretary Blaine outfor the Cabinet by Reed, McKinley & Co., has made Blaine an enemy to all their schemes, and the "old Blaine-fever."

Of course such an agreement would not really be binding upon the Republicans unless it should have the caucus sanction. It may be that no further caucus will be held. Things are going to drag along under the dicker that has been made, and in two weeks or so the chances are that there will be no uncertainty whatever surrounding the situation. BLAIR'S RESOLUTION.

The resolution offered yesterday by Mr. Blair instructing the Committee on Rules to report within four days a rule for the incorporation of the previous question or of some method for limiting and closing debate in the parliamentary procedure of the Senate was taken up.

Mr. Blair said senators had spoken to him indicating their desire to be heard before action should be taken in the matter who were not ready to proceed this morning. He should, therefore, not press the resolution this morning. But he desired to say that he had offered the resolution, not with special reference to any pending bill, but with the feeling that there was a necessity for the proposed change. The year of the country's business the Senate must have some way by which a larger number of important public measures could be decided. The difficulty hitherto had been in the other house of Congress, but that difficulty had been, as all senators knew, removed to some extent, so that action was obtained more promptly than formerly. The Senate, which had been hitherto the more expeditious body in the transaction of business, was now liable to be, and in fact was far behind; he meant far behind in its capacity to reach and decide whatever measure the majority was disposed to pass.
